

DRU MASTERS

COMPOSER

At 3 years old, Dru knew he wanted to be a composer. His mother had joined the Sadlers Wells Ballet at 15 and used to break in Margot Fonteyn's shoes, his father was a playwright and a poet. Dru won a scholarship to attend the Purcell School at 10 and joined the National Youth Jazz Orchestra at 16. He studied composition and arrangement with legendary MD, Ray Cooke and spent much of his late teens sitting in the orchestra pit of countless London theatres, marking up scores for shows like Sweeney Todd, Jean Seberg and West Side Story.

Dru's career in television began as a composer's assistant on the BBC drama, Howards Way. He went on to produce and co-write several ITV dramas with acclaimed British composer, Steve Martland, before being asked to score his first drama, Paul Abbot and Kay Mellor's The Ward, which ran for 5 years on ITV, winning many awards, including a BAFTA. Dru is currently scoring the Welsh thriller, Y Llyfrgell, by award winning director Euros Lyn (Doctor Who, Broadchurch).

Recently, Dru scored Capital, the new 3-part series for BBC1 starring Toby Jones, all three series of Peter Moffat's triple BAFTA nominated BBC drama, Silk, starring Maxine Peake and Rupert Penry-Jones, Young James Herriot, which also won a BAFTA, and Charlie Brooker's hilarious spoof, A Touch Of Cloth, starring John Hannah and Suranne Jones.

He composed the music for the trailer launching the new Ubisoft game, Anno 2205, scores for a number of highly acclaimed theatre productions, several television comedies, including the BBC's Parmface and I'm With Stupid, many short films and the feature film, Jump, directed by Bindu de Stoppani and starring Claire Price, for which he was nominated for Best Score at the British Independent Film Festival.

Dru has also composed scores for countless factual television shows, including the multi BAFTA winning, The Apprentice, The Restaurant, Undercover Boss and station ident branding for ITV. He has also written and produced songs for artists as diverse as Mediaeval Baebes and George Michael.
